What's New in the U.BI.TEACH World? Exploring the Latest Developments!

Focus Groups' Results

We have successfully collected all the information from the U.BI.TEACH Focus Groups, which served as the first step in our bottom-up approach to designing the U.BI.TEACH pack. These focus groups, conducted in each partner country, engaged teachers, academics, and training experts in the field of urban biodiversity to ensure that the developed tools align with the needs of the target audience.

The gathered insights are now available on our website, providing valuable input for the next stages of the project.

The U.BI.TEACH Competence Model is Ready!

We are excited to announce that the U.BI.TEACH Competence Model is now available! This model formalizes the key requirements for teaching and innovating in science education within Higher Education Institutions, with a specific focus on urban biodiversity. It outlines the essential skills, knowledge, and attitudes that educators need to integrate innovative teaching methods into their classrooms. This milestone represents a crucial step in supporting teachers in delivering engaging and impactful lessons on urban biodiversity. Stay tuned for more updates, and explore the model on our website!
